CLASS POEM

As tenderly we bid Queen Anne farewell
And ponder o'er the joys we leave behind
What are the visions that we call to mind?
What are the memories that within us dwell?
They are the thoughts that cause our hearts to swell,
Not thoughts of toil and strife that we did find,
But memories of our friendships true and kind
And thoughts of leaving those we loved so well.
There lingers not a sign of memory sad.
We think not of the failures in the past,
But of encouragement sincere and true;
And thinking back o'er time, it makes us glad
To think that we can truly say at last,
"We owe it all, Queen Anne High, to you."
