QA Website Keeps Growing Thanks to Alums

Exciting Lives Intersect Online

By Sandy Murray '55

Sandy Murray '55

Now in its fifth year, Queen Anne's alumni website is about to get younger and more technical. With Jeff Cummings '76 taking over by summer's end, the web-mastership will have progressed from dilettante to academic to professional.

Jeff, who has a degree in graphic design, is art director of Allrecipes, "the leading recipe and meal-planning site on the Internet." According to Jeff, Allrecipes is geared mainly toward working women and offers over 20,000 recipes. At Allrecipes for 4 1/2 years, Jeff is responsible for the design of both the website and its series of printed cookbooks. He and his wife live in Kenmore along with their two daughters, who are 8 and 18.

Joe Moloso '55

The Queen Anne alumni website, www.qagrizzlies.org, started in early 2000, when QAHSAA Board member Ed Bol '81 contracted with Drizzle.com, a Seattle Internet service provider, to create a Queen Anne website. It lay there without updating from Drizzle until the digital dilettante, Sandy Murray '55, persuaded Ed at the end of 2000 to give him the password. At that point, the dilettante had no web experience. He had tried to create one for his Alaskan running club in 1995, but, just as he started carrying around a copy of "HTML for Dummies", a fellow runner beat him to it and the "Dummies" book was shelved.

When Sandy keyed his way into the QA website in December 2000, he found well over 300 e-mails unanswered, proving that Ed's creation had found a ready alumni audience. Sandy had recently discovered classmate Joe Moloso '55, anthropologist, linguistics scholar, musician, Pilates black belt, polymath, on the faculty website at gargantuan Glendale Community College in Phoenix. There he has been the library director as well as professor of such subjects as English literature and composition, math, music, graphic arts, and computer science for 38 years, while also serving as leading rabble-rouser in the faculty senate. Both were former KUAY editors-in-chief, Sandy with Janet Alton '55 first semester of their senior year, and Joe with Sue Snyder '55 the second semester.

Jeff Cummings '76

Picking Joe's brain, Sandy followed his advice to upgrade to Macromedia's Dreamweaver page creation program - a fortunately prescient suggestion since that's the program Jeff uses at Allrecipes.com.

From Our QAHSAA President

The “Grizzly Spirit” lives on and on, and in fact is roaring loudly! As a result of all the photos in the last KUAY, I know of three fellow grads who were reunited with high school friends with whom they had lost touch. In fact, one had been told that the friend had died many years past. Oh the joy of seeing the “deceased” friend alive and well in a photo in the KUAY, and the added joy of their reunion!

Sharing in events like this is right at the top of the list of reasons that I am grateful to be a part of the Alumni Association. The continuing growth and continuity of the Association are also reasons that make my role meaningful. For example, last year the Board went out on a limb by increasing the number of scholarships to 30. There was concern about our ability to maintain such a high number and what the reaction from the members would be if we had to reduce the number the next year.

Lo and behold, your contributions this past year enabled us to keep the number at 30 scholarships again this year, along with contributions added to the continuing Heffelfinger Scholarship. I thank you all for the continuing support and look forward to seeing you at our annual summer events.

With long-range tutoring from Joe, Sandy, then located in Olympia, transferred www.qagrizzlies.org to Dreamweaver and began expanding the site, adding the e-mail directory, illustrating the merchandise, updating the Events, Reunions, and Scholarship pages, creating the WWII and Vietnam Memorial sections and the occasional historical feature, doing so as best he could while struggling to control Dreamweaver's layers, cells, and tables.

Joe took over the site for a while when Sandy moved to Australia in July 2003. Now, with Sandy's move to Costa Rica this past March, Joe's grabbed the fallen reins again. This time he will hand them off to Jeff, who, as a Dreamweaver professional, will make behave the layers, cells and tables that so bedeviled Sandy. Jeff says his initial efforts will be to update the look a little bit and clean up the code - nothing “grandiose” he says. He intends also to better protect the e-mail directory from spammers.

...the growing e-mail directory has enabled some old friends to find each other.

The Events, Reunions, and News pages have helped with timely information for Grizzlies...

Perhaps the most important accomplishment of the website so far is that quite a few “lost” alumni have been added to the Association's 25,000+ database. In addition, the growing e-mail directory has enabled some old friends to find each other. The Events, Reunions, and News pages have helped with timely information for Grizzlies, but the site could be even more informative if event and reunion organizers, as well as Board members and others, became habituated to e-mailing the webmaster both before and after the events and reunions.

A major accomplishment has been the creation of the WWII and Vietnam memorial pages, recognizing Grizzlies who died in these wars. While family members of those who were killed in WWII have provided crucial information, there are still 18 Gold Star Grizzlies on a missing list because they have not been found in the yearbooks. Another development has been the posting of each new KUAY newsletter on the website, helpful especially to many Grizzlies living abroad, since the KUAY is not mailed to them unless they have prepaid the postage.

Potential interactive elements of the website have not yet been exploited. Message boards and online payment are possible future features for the website and QAHSAA Board to explore.

In the meantime, the academic will soon be free of his advisory role, the professional will cook up something visually savory, while, south of the border - south of several borders - the dilettante is playing around with another website, hoping not to dirty the code.

WHO'S NEWS

By John Hennes '51 and Kim Turner '61

We need your input to create this column. Send news of Grizzlies to: KUAY Editor, QA Alumni Assoc., PO Box 9128, Seattle, WA 98109. E-mail: jbhennes1@mindspring.com or ktturner@spl.org Photos are always wanted.

1930s

Jim McMillin '33, was a gold medal winner at the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin. Today, he lives on Bainbridge Island. Jim presented a review of those heady days recently, when the UW crews swept the Intercollegiate Rowing Association championship at Poughkeepsie, NY, and went on to take the gold in Berlin. In those days the top collegiate crew represented the USA, rather than a composite national crew. Jim coached for a time at M.I.T. and then spent his working years at Boeing. Dick Tenney '39, also a Bainbridge Islander, attended Jim's talk and sent us this reminder that Grizzlies of every era produced winners.

You never know where a Grizzly will show up. A moving/yard sale in Minden, NV, was held recently by Betsy (Holcomb) Small '77, prior to returning to Seattle. One of the customers proved to be Ed Cannell '37, from Carson City. Ed saw Betsy's Queen Anne license plate holder and says he keeps in touch with Ray Carlson '37. Among Ed's prize possessions are hand-drawn Christmas cards from the late Hank Ketchum '37, "Dennis the Menace" creator.

1940s

Joan (Dennis) Pearson and Bill Pearson, both '47, met in Chester Taylor's photography class in 1946. Bill writes that after 54 years of marriage they're still going strong. They now live in Sun City, AZ, following 20 years in Portland. They volunteer their time with Meals on Wheels. Classmates can reach them at osobotnazz@cs.com.

Betty (Middleton) Edwards '42, was featured in a two-page spread in the QA News (9/24/03) about local seniors and artists. She has studied and taught Norwegian Rosemaling (flower painting) for years, learning an appreciation for arts and crafts from her Norwegian mother-in-law. Betty was born in a house where the children's play area is now at Howe Field and has lived most of her life on Queen Anne.

Don Regalia '45, reports he is returning to Washington from Arizona and hopes to attend some of the summer events. He will be living in Mount Vernon.

Many may remember the "Kennedy Kids" – Peter '46 and his sister Karol (Kennedy) Kucher won the pairs World Figure Skating Championship in 1950 and an Olympic Silver Medal in 1952. They were recently inducted into the Figure Skating Hall of Fame. Karol passed away in June of this year. She graduated from St. Nicholas School in 1950.

Continuing to live the country gentleman life is Rod Brunette '49, who spends time with his wife Dorothy at their cabin on the Skykomish River.

1950s

Alastair (Sandy) Murray '55, our peripatetic former website manager has settled in Costa Rica, where he plans to open a B&B. He is still working on getting every QA Gold Star (military death during war time) onto our website. His e-mail: alastairmurray@msn.com.

Keith Martin '51, missed his 50th reunion because he was in Sweden. He continues to teach at Fairfield University in Fairfield, CT. For a time he served as dean of the School of Business. He has joined an amateur theatrical group in NY. He also is in a barbershop chorus and quartet, inspired by QA's music director, Eugene Brown.

Bill Hartley '54, has been a foreign correspondent and financial reporter for many years for The Wall Street Journal, U.S. News & World Report, CNN and CNBC. He lives in Hong Kong, but will be moving to Australia later this year. Upon discovering the QA website and reading about the Grizzly Inn, he recalled that Kay Starr always seemed to be singing "Wheel of Fortune" when he went to the Inn. Whenever he hears that song he smells the Inn.

Dave Teal (J. David Teal) '55, sends memories of the great 1953 city championship football team and the late Pete Hanson, who ran rings around the opposition in both 1953 and 1954. The defense in 1954 was not as good as '53, so Q.A. did not repeat the title.

If you correspond with any foreign Grizzlies, please give them the web address: www.qagrizzlies.org

Joe Winkler '56, saw the article on Jay Taylor's gift to the scholarship fund and wanted to get in touch with his former teacher. Success! Joe lives in the Olympia area.

Last year saw a lot of 70th birthdays for members of the class of '51. Everyone gets their turn. Down in Amado, AZ, at the Amado Territory Inn, Betty (Ballinger) Hilton held a party. Carol (Park) McIntyre, George Munko and his wife, and surprise guest Sue (Burton) Goleeke, all '51, showed up. Also there was Teri Durr, daughter of the late Beverly (Petty) West '51, and Betty's 96-year-old mother. Betty has managed the Inn south of Tucson, for the past 5 years.

1960s

Kim Turner '61, received e-mail from Bill Turley '61, who was seeking an address for Howard Heffelfinger '61, (Charles' son). Howard and Bill were good friends from grade school onward, but lost touch in the last quarter of the century. Kim passed along Howard's mailing address from their 40th reunion book—yes, these DO have a life beyond the reunion year—and hope they got back in contact. Bill sends his memory of teacher Charles Heffelfinger.

“Of all the teachers I had at QA, Howard's father was the one who made the strongest and most lasting impression on me. In fact, he is the reason I become a political scientist.

Although his subject was history, he aroused my interest in politics so that I knew by my senior year what I was going to major in at Whitman. The most vivid of my QA memories are of Heffelfinger striding into class, sitting down, taking off his glasses, rubbing his eyes, staring at the ceiling and out the window, and only then beginning to lecture, without notes, in a muffled baritone voice that I can hear to this day.

Heffelfinger had a student in class who worked after school at the cleaners near the corner of McGraw and Queen Anne. One of the student's responsibilities was to change the slogan on the marquee-like sign over the door once a week. Heffelfinger gave him this idea: ‘Heffelfinger says even leopard's spots removed’. Bill has been teaching poly sci and writing books out of Southern Illinois University since 1971.

Jim Dorney '64, sends news of the death of classmate Phil Rogers, who lost a battle with melanoma March 6, 2004. Phil and family (wife, Sally, and children, Patrick and Ashley) were living in Charlotte, NC.

“Travels with Maggie” is the ebullient Rick Malsed's new column in the Magnolia News. Rick '63, is setting off on a three-month, 10,000-mile pilgrimage driving a 1952 MG TD roadster, towing a small tent trailer. His traveling companion is his Shih Tzu, Maggie. He will travel through Canada, New England, the South and Southwest, sending back news columns about his current passion: British MG cars. Visit his column at: www.magnolianews.net.

1970s

More Queen Anne connections! Last year three students graduating from Shorewood High received 2003 QA alumni scholarships: Kevin Estep, Amanda Giles and Elizabeth Hammond. Their principal, John Turner Green '70 is a Grizzly. His mother, Judy (Turner) Green '34, taught at QA 1963-64.

Brooks Burford '70 and Marcia Karfstedt '70, reconnected at their 30th class reunion—and were married on the beach Dec.28, at Cabo San Lucas (Baja for you folks whose sense of geography is I-5 or I-90). Brooks anchors the news in Portland; Marcia is a tax accountant. From Brooks: “We really are happily ever after.”

(Bob) Gerrit Barrere '73, writes that he continues to make progress recovering from a stroke which kept him from the 30th class reunion.

The Shrewsbury men, Bob Jr. '71, and Ric '74, launched the 18th towboat for the fleet of their Western Towboat Company June 28. The christening honors went to their mom, Joy Shrewsbury, who was a key member of the company when the boys were young. Their father, Bob Sr., '43, founded Western Towboat in the '50s, after serving in the Coast Guard. This launching coincided with the birthday of Bob Sr., often affectionately called "The Old Man". The senior Shrewsbury's are retired and live most of the year in AZ. Ric married a QA classmate, Theresa (Osterhaug) Shrewsbury '74. The new tug, named Ocean Titan, is 125 feet long, is powered by two engines totaling 5,000 horsepower and draws an impressive 18 feet when loaded with fuel, water and supplies. The company now employs about 125 people.

Steve Hall '79, a wildlife biologist and environmental consultant, lives & works in Seattle's Belltown. He is seeking information about his late Great Aunt Constance (Noonan) Hall '35.

The Franklin Finale

By Hal Will '44

Last summer, KUAY readers were re-introduced to the story of the 1929 Franklin belonging to Clyde Holcomb '45. This concludes the series of stories about that car.

Beverly (Brown) Smith-Griebel's father offered Clyde gasoline rations stamps in return for teaching Bev how to drive in the Franklin. She had to learn to double-clutch, when shifting from high to second. Bev always considered Clyde a good friend for his driving lessons.

This was just one of the numerous anecdotes sent in about the popular old Franklin. Many fondly commented on having to push the car to save gas on level ground by Mount Pleasant Cemetery to earn rides home to Magnolia. The car mysteriously came back to life going downhill to Interbay.

Laid Up For the Duration

Clyde and I went into the service on the same day, Feb. 12, 1945. The Franklin was parked by the Holcomb's house for the 20 months that we were gone. Clyde's letters home mentioned the Franklin occasionally but by September '46 his letters requested that the Franklin be "ready to go" when he got home. He made it home from the Philippines about two weeks ahead of me and had the Franklin operational by the time I got home. I remember a white fungus had grown above a window in the back seat while we were gone, testifying to the atmospheric conditions inside the car.

The Franklin, Postwar

I remember going on dates in the Franklin after the war. We also went skiing in it to Steven's Pass. We could carry the skis inside the car if we didn't feel like tying them on the flat roof. The ski equipment inside forced desirable "togetherness" on ski dates. We usually had two or three couples on ski trips. Our skis, boots, poles, socks, jackets and pants were all war surplus. The skis and poles were white but everything else was war surplus olive drab. We were really stylish, low-budget examples of the times. The Franklin's heater was simply a pipe through the fire wall that captured heat from around the exhaust pipe. Cold, wet wool socks would get steaming hot in front of that hot air blast while traveling home. All that wet wool emitted a distinctive smell inside the car.

I remember double-dating in the Franklin. We guys liked the four-on-the-floor stick shift but the girl sitting next to the driver in the center of the front seat often had a problem when he shifted to low or high.

We had a lot of laughs in that car. Clyde and I would play pranks on each other by removing the rotor from the distributor when the other guy was to drive a date somewhere. This was usually at a dance where there was a suitable audience. The hapless driver cranked and cranked before lifting the hood and finally discovering the distributor rotor was missing. By then the prankster would appear with the needed rotor amidst laughter from all that were in on the joke. We didn't dare lose the rotor because a replacement would have been very difficult to find.

Saying Goodbye

The Franklin finally became impractical to keep running; but, I don't remember the details of the accumulative troubles. I had my own car so was not with Clyde in the Franklin very often anymore. I do remember the very tough decision to deliver that faithful old car to the junk yard. I think Clyde's decision was helped along by Clyde Sr., a very practical man. The Franklin would no longer run and repairs were financially impractical. When the day came to do it, we found a heavy rope and began a very emotional tow job with my car. The bumpers on both cars were easy to wrap a rope around. Clyde rode in the Franklin to steer and brake. It was like taking a beloved pet on its final trip to the vet. I think we each had tears in our eyes as our little procession headed for Fitz Auto Wrecking out on Aurora Avenue. We broke the rope once in Ballard and once farther out. We stopped and re-tied it each time without exchanging a word. I think we both were afraid of revealing a shaky emotional voice or worse, tears. It was very difficult to turn our backs on our old friend there at Fitz. It wasn't just a piece of old machinery. It was symbolic of many happy memories for both of us...many of us.

Gould's Generosity Results In Foundation Donation to Scholarship Fund

The Providence General Foundation of Everett sent a donation to the QAHSAA Scholarship Fund in honor of Budd Gould '58. "Budd, owner of Anthony's Restaurants, has been a generous supporter of local non-profit agencies for many years," wrote Providence.

Gould has donated his restaurant facilities to the Providence Foundation for its "Epicurean Affair" event for 18 years, resulting in $800,000 raised to date for the Prenatal Care Center, and the Heart and Vascular Institutes at the Everett Medical Center.

Gould started in the restaurant and seafood business during the start-up of Skipper's Fish N Chips. Waterfront restaurants became his focus, and today Gould owns 18 restaurants - all in the Anthony Restaurants group. It's safe to say that local QA grads are familiar with his restaurants. Gould's accomplishment as a local businessman and philanthropist is well represented by this donation to the QA Scholarship Fund.

Do You Remember Henk? Coach Henkel Stories Sought

Erwin Henkel (1902-1988) was one of Queen Anne's most colorful characters. Known as Coach Henkel to earlier generations, and simply as "Henk" to later students, Mr. Henkel taught generations of boys to become men and to think for themselves.

Henk arrived at Queen Anne in the fall of 1926 and retired from there in 1964. He coached the baseball team and taught PE classes. He expected the best from everyone, and let you know if you didn't make the effort. He spent his last years at Queen Anne Manor. Every boy who went through Queen Anne during Henk's 38 years there has a memory of Mr. Henkel and a story about something he did or said. "Spend your money, sleep in the street!"

We'd like to collect those memories and put together an "album" of Henkel stories for grads to read. We know you have such a story or remember a Henkel quote. Send it in! Please keep your stories short and specific - One or two paragraphs should do it. Send them to: Kuay Editor, PO Box 9128, Seattle, WA 98109 or e-mail: jbennes1@mindspring.com.

KUAY Book Reviews

World War II's "Flyboys" and Its Connection to Magnolia and Queen Anne By Hal Will '44

The new book "Flyboys" by best-selling author James Bradley, has a definite link to Magnolia and Queen Anne. It describes in detail how Magnolia native Bill Connell '42 earned the unique distinction of being the last American to leave the Japanese Island of Chichi Jima alive.

Bill loved the Navy and visited the Navy ships anchored in Elliott Bay for Fleet Week or at any other opportunity. He also thought it would be neat to fly, so Navy Air is where he headed after high school.

Skipping ahead to July 4, 1944, finds Bill at the controls of his Navy dive-bomber with gunner, Ben Wolf, at his station. They had lifted off the carrier Hornet at 5 a.m. and by 7 a.m. were starting their dive to bomb a Japanese ship entering the harbor at Chichi Jima. An anti-aircraft shell exploded by the plane stunning Bill. When he tried to regain control he discovered the tail and the right wing were gone. The plane was falling like a leaf.

Bill jettisoned their bombs and yelled for Ben to get out! After waiting a short period Bill bailed out and was captured as he floated in the harbor. He never did find out what happened to Ben.

After seven days blindfolded, handcuffed and interrogated, Bill was taken to Iwo Jima. He sat on the tarmac for about five hours, then was put in the rear seat of a two-engine bomber, still tied and blindfolded, and was flown to the Tokyo area where he was put in the Ofuna POW camp outside Yokohama.

Pilots were treated worse than other POWs. Bill spent the rest of the war here until the Japanese surrender in August 1945. It was only then that Bill learned the fact and the reason for his unique title as last American to leave Chichi Jima alive. The other eight Flyboys captured on Chichi Jima were executed various ways at the pleasure of high ranking Japanese officers.

Twenty-year-old George H.W. Bush was shot down at Chichi Jima on Sept. 2, but was rescued by the U.S. submarine Finback. The Navy had informed Bill Connell's family that he was missing in action in 1944. They lived with that news for over a year. Two weeks after the Japanese surrender they received a brief telegram from Bill, "I'm well, happy, flying home."

How Far Would You Go to Get to School?

By Glo (Gleason) Holcomb '46

We have all heard the stories like "I trudged barefoot through drifting snow for 2-3-5 miles to get to school in my day." The trek to Queen Anne High School was a little less demanding for most of us. But for Corrine (Anderson) Anderson '28 to get an education at Queen Anne, it WAS tough! Corrine started her schooling in Bangor, in a one-room school house where drinking water had to be fetched by bucket from some distance away. Her family later moved to Keyport. When it came time for high school at QA, the trip to get there was truly daunting. Each day Corrine would go to the Keyport ferry dock with 25 other students to ride one of the "Mosquito Fleet" steam boats across Puget Sound. During the 90-minute trip they would play cards, chat or study.

Upon docking in Seattle, Corrine and friends would then travel by street car through Seattle and up the Counterbalance, and then climb, on foot, the Galer Street steps. By 5:15 pm they would leave Seattle for the trip back across the water.

Corrine passed away in January. Her daughter Connie (Anderson) Graebner '63, and husband Alden Graebner '63 are my neighbors and told me the story. Connie's brothers Gary '58 and Grover '61 also are QA Grads.

Items are sold at most reunions and alumni events, and can also be viewed and ordered from "Pat's on the Ave" at 1905 Queen Anne Ave. N. Owner Pat Nolan makes no profit from the QA logo sales. Queen Anne closed just before Pat could attend, but he has a fondness for the school that comes from a lifetime on Queen Anne and three generations of QA grads in his family.
